More than 35 members of academia and healthcare centers from across the nation visited Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston for "Army Medicine Experience II" from June 17 to 20.

Designed to increase awareness of the Army Medical Department, discuss behavioral health programs and short-ages in medical career specialties and to highlight career opportunities through the Health Professions Scholarship Program, the three-day event was sponsored by the Medical Recruiting Brigade in concert with U.S. Army Recruiting Command.

"The Army issues approximately 400 medical-related scholarships per year. The Army needs your help in getting the word out about these scholarships and other programs," said Maj. Gen. David Mann, commander of U.S. Army Recruiting Command.

"We are looking for individuals that have a genuine desire to care for our Soldier and give back to the nation."

U.S. Army Medical Command chief of staff Herb Coley spoke at the opening day breakfast about the quality of Army medical personnel as "enduring."

"MEDCOM is more than 80,000 personnel strong, operates 616 medical facilities worldwide and cares for 1.8 million beneficiaries," Coley said. "The survival rate on today's battlefield is approximately 95 percent, much higher than in previous conflicts."

The Centers of Influence, as they are referred to, visited the San Antonio Military Medical Center, as well as the Burn Center and the Center for The Intrepid.

While touring the AMEDD Museum, a panel of AMEDD officers, including Army doctors who had taken advantage of the HPSP, answered questions and shared some of their training, travels and service experiences.

Among the panel members were Maj. Gen. Jimmie

Summer Safety Day 2012 provides useful information

Service members and their families soaked in ways to stay cool, have fun and, most importantly, be safe during the hot months ahead during Summer Safety Day 2012 at the Roadrunner Community Center June 20.

Along with family members, Soldiers like 1st Lt. Latonya S. Nelson, safety officer for the 187th Medical Battalion, picked up useful information to take back to her troops.

"This is a great event, because you have all the entities here in one place," Nelson said. "I have taken advantage of this opportunity to pick up information to take back to my unit."

State troopers from the Texas Department of Public Safety, firefighters from 502nd Fire Emergency Services, and officers from the San Antonio Police Department and 502nd Security Forces Squadron were on hand to offer summer safety tips.

A younger set of future law enforcement officers were also at the event — the San Antonio Police Explorers.

Independence Day is a time for us to reflect on the powerful words put to paper by our Founding Fathers -- "that all men are created equal.

It is this belief which makes our nation the greatest in the world, and it's a belief worth Houston needs to enjoy their Fourth of July. Fireworks, cookouts, and water sports are great summer traditions.

Unfortunately, these activities, when done carelessly, take the lives of countless Americans every year. Please keep the following in mind:

- The daily heat index can easily reach 110 degrees Fahrenheit in July. Drink plenty of fluids, don't overexert yourself, and stay in shaded areas. Pay special attention to young children and elderly family members. Please keep in mind that alcohol will cause you to become dehydrated more quickly.

- Keep a close eye on your friends and family, and intervene if you see them behaving unsafely. Please use the buddy system, it works!

- Drive defensively – the Fourth of July is one of the busiest days of the year on our nation's highways. Watch out for the other person who is not paying attention.

- No thrill is worth your life.

Fourth of July is one of the most enjoyable holidays of the year; and with a little added caution, we can keep it that way.

Declaration of Independence: More than signatures; a pledge to each other

By Brig. Gen. Theresa C. Carter
Commander, 502d Air Base Wing

Contrary to popular belief, the Declaration of Independence wasn't actually signed on July 4. After the delegates to the Continental Congress unanimously approved the document, copies were quickly printed and distributed throughout the colonies so it could be read aloud in village squares.

It wasn't until July 19 that Congress ordered the document to be "engrossed," or signed, and delegates began signing the document on Aug. 2.

The first person to sign was John Hancock, whose bold signature is the most prominent of the 56 signers of the declaration.

Legend has it that on signing the declaration, Hancock commented, "The British ministry can read that name without spectacles; let them double their reward."

Benjamin Franklin famously said "We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately."

Let's stop and think for a moment about the risk through those difficult times? What helped them stay by the side of their fellow colonists? I believe it was a shared commitment to a cause bigger than themselves and to the bond they formed with each other.

Does that sound familiar?

All of us who currently wear or have worn our nation's uniform demonstrated that same shared commitment when we raised our right hand and volunteered to support and defend the constitution founded upon that declaration. We're able to continue serving amidst the hardships and sacrifices because of the unbreakable bond we've our founding fathers took in affixing their signature to that document.

Doing so amounted to treason in the eyes of the British. There could be no turning back, no denying they had participated in its creation and approval.

These 56 men most assuredly believed they must indeed hang together and support each other in order to turn the words in the declaration into the actions needed to found an independent and free nation.

I can only imagine the challenges they faced, no doubt second-guessing what they had done as they met in the candlelit taverns of Boston and Williamsburg to discuss the tough road ahead.

What helped them

San Antonians are at least peripherally aware of the local military presence, because men and women in uniform are routinely seen visiting the Riverwalk and other destinations in the downtown area.

However, most local residents are not conversant with Joint Base San Antonio and the myriad missions within the gates of the four major locations which compose the joint base – Fort Sam Houston, Camp Bullis and Lackland and Randolph Air Force Bases.

That was a key reason Brig. Gen. Theresa C. Carter, 502nd Air Base Wing and Joint Base San Antonio commander, hosted more than a dozen 502nd ABW honorary commanders June 20.

"I'm pleased that so many of our honorary commanders were able to experience a day in the life of the 502nd Air Base Wing and see the work we do in support of our mission partners across Joint Base San Antonio," Carter said.

"It was also a great opportunity to highlight JBASA's role as a national asset and home for the world class capabilities our Army, Marine Corps, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard units provide to the nation in the areas of training, education, 24/7 operations in support of combatant commanders, installation management and healthcare," the general added.

The 14 honorary commanders, selected for their influence within the local community, were paired with military commanders, senior enlisted members and Department of

Army North hosts annual retired general officer update

By Sgt. Lee Ezzell
ARNORTH Public Affairs

U.S. Army North hosted the eighth annual Retired General Officer Update June 15 at the Fort Sam Houston Golf Club.

The conference is intended to update retired generals from a four-state area, centered around Texas, on the current status of the Army.

One of the key features of the conference is that it provides current leaders the opportunity to garner feedback from the retired generals about the communities they live in, said Mark Greszler, U.S. Army North, who served as the event's organizer.

The retired generals usually don't take off the uniform and sit at home, he said in explaining that they become part of their community as members of civic organizations or business leaders.

Lt. Gen. William B. Caldwell IV, commanding general of U.S. Army North and senior commander for Fort Sam Houston and Camp Bullis, thanked the retired senior leaders for attending the update and asked them to continue to support to the Army community as they always have.

The update featured speakers on a variety of topics, ranging from the situations in Afghanistan and Iraq to a Brooke Army Medical Center update and a brief on the future of the Army.

Caldwell spoke about his experience as the commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Training Mission-Afghanistan.

The general was followed by Col. John Peeler, also known as "Blackjack 6," commander of 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 1st Cavalry Division, Fort Hood.

Peeler recently returned from Iraq and

In a change of command ceremony at Blesse Auditorium June 22, Lt. Col. Beverly A. Beavers relinquished command of the U.S. Army Medical Information Technology Center to Col. Andrew J. Smith.

Smith arrives at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston after serving as the G6/Chief Information Officer at the Western Regional Medical Command, Joint Base Lewis-McChord. Beavers is taking his place at the same command.

Hosted by the U.S. Army Medical Command, the ceremony included remarks from the MEDCOM chief of staff, Herbert A. Coley, followed by the remarks of the outgoing and incoming commanders. The ceremony also included an invocation and a presentation of flowers and gifts to the family members of the two commanders.

Beavers thanked her family and key personnel who helped her while she was the commander, and took the opportunity to give the command a lot of kudos.

"USAMITC—Today is about you! USAMITC, you rock!" Beavers said. "You are professional. You love what you do and you are the best at what you do."

"In a few weeks, I will be one of your customers," the outgoing commander added. "But for a lifetime—just remember—I will always be one of your most loyal fans; serving to heal, honored to serve!"

Smith also thanked his family and key personnel who enabled him to assume his new position.

"Together, we will continue to provide the world class service that has come to be expected," Smith said, "We will explore new opportunities and new capabilities, and will continue to be a model that our Army Surgeon General can point to and tell people, 'This is what right looks like.'"

A reception followed the ceremony at the U.S. Army Medical Department Museum.

Installation Management Command leadership discusses future at Executive Leader Council

By Evan Dyson
IMCOM Public Affairs

Leaders from the Army Secretariat, Assistant Chief of Staff for Installation Management and the Installation Management Command met to discuss the future of installation management June 5 to 7 at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston.

“We brought in key leaders from the installation management community and we’re looking at how we deliver services today, what we’re going to adjust, and then how we think we will look in 2020 – really, to align ourselves with the Army’s strategy for U.S. Army 2020,” said Lt. Gen. Mike Ferriter, IMCOM commanding general.

During opening remarks for the Executive Leader Council June 5, Ferriter emphasized the importance of teamwork to acting as effective leaders.

Assistant Secretary of the Army for installations, energy and environment Katherine Hammack stressed the same point.

“We have different roles and responsibilities but we have to work together seamlessly as a team,” Hammack said.

With the theme “Building the Future: Installation 2020 Strategic Vision,” the event also provided Ferriter an opportunity to share guidance on the organization’s top 10 priorities and update leaders on issues affecting them daily.

Debra Zedalis, IMCOM Pacific Region director, said the gathering served several functions.

“First, it sets the baseline for what we’re currently executing, so everyone has that full understanding,” Zedalis said.

“I think to bring everyone together from top to bottom really does knit that whole cloth for us. There are a lot of smart people and a lot of good ideas. When you bring big thinkers together you get big answers.”

Although the Army is expected to be a leaner force moving forward, the council reinforced IMCOM’s commitment to serving Soldiers, civilians and family members, despite future budget reductions.

“As we come together with all of our senior leaders in IMCOM and the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Installation Management,” said IMCOM Command Sgt. Maj. Earl Rice, “it’s extremely important that we spend this time together building our team and getting some systems in place to make sure that we can deliver the right services.”

Future operations will require thoughtful management, according to Maj. Gen. Al Aycok, director of operations for the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Installation Management.

“These times reflect an increased need for stewardship while supporting mission deployments and continued transformation of our force,” he said. “The results of this session will help ensure we meet the needs of our Army in the future.”

Ferriter agreed.

“We wake up every day thinking about ‘What is it that our Soldier needs and what is it that their family member needs and how do we best deliver it?’” Ferriter said.

“I’m very, very proud of the installation management team around the world and very proud of the hard work that they do and the way they take care of our Soldiers and families.”

Defense civilian directors with the intent of engendering an exchange of ideas and perspectives.

In turn, they help spread the word about San Antonio's military missions throughout the civilian community.

"I was thoroughly impressed with the professionalism of our young enlisted members, DOD civilians and officers, said honorary commander Bob Murdock, Director, Office of Military Affairs, City of San Antonio. "I very much appreciated the opportunity to participate."

The honorary commanders began the day at JBSA-Fort Sam Houston with the 502nd ABW mission briefing from Carter before heading to JBSA-Lackland. While at Lackland, they viewed military working dogs in action at the 802nd Security Forces Squadron and visited the 802nd Civil Engineer Squadron's explosive ordnance disposal unit.

During lunch at the Gateway Club, briefings were conducted about contracting, civil engineering and communications within the 502nd ABW and the joint base. The honorary commanders then paid a visit to Initial Clothing Issue, where basic trainees are fitted for uniforms.

Finally, the guests visited and were briefed on the new Airman Training Complex under construction.

"Visiting and being briefed on the new training complex created much excitement within the visiting honorary commanders in attendance," said honorary commander Janice Ricks, vice president of Lester Industries and LJP Leasing.

Honorary commander Thad Ziegler, of Thad Ziegler Glass, was equally enthusiastic about the training complex and the entire tour.

"Even though I have visited Lackland an average of four or five times a year since 1991, in many different capacities, I have always been amazed that during almost every visit I learn of something new that is going on there," Ziegler said.

Following the Lackland tour, it was back to JBSA-Fort Sam Houston where a reception was conducted at the Stilwell House, a national historic landmark, and Carter presented 502nd Air Base Wing coins to the honorary commanders.

"Briefings for the honorary commanders have always been a gathering one should never miss," Ricks said. "They are always well planned and most informative, but I do believe this was the best one yet."

The 502nd ABW plans to give the honorary commanders a more extensive tour of JBSA-Fort Sam Houston, JBSA-Camp Bullis and JBSA-Randolph in the near future.

The Great Amazing Race: first 25 entries get free pass

The first 25 teams of military families who sign up – on a first-come, first-serve basis – can receive a free pass to compete in the San Antonio Great Amazing Race at 6 p.m. July 1 at Olmos Basin Park.

The event pits teams of two against other teams and NFL players in a series of up to eight chal-

Servicemembers, retirees and their family members are eligible to compete in two-person teams which must consist of at least one child in first through 12th grade.

To sign up for the race at no cost, go to www.GreatAmazingRace.com, click on San Antonio, go to the registration page, complete the form and enter “Courtesy of Military” in the comments box.

If you are one of the first qualifying teams, you will not be required to complete the credit card information when submitting the form. Applications will be honored on a first-to-register basis.

Nearly 100 Reserve Soldiers of the 338th Military Intelligence Battalion performed annual training at Joint Base San Antonio-Camp Bullis for the first two weeks of June, not only to enhance their warrior and specialty skills, but also to get to know one another.

The 338th MI Battalion, a U.S. Army Reserve unit assigned to the 470th MI Brigade at JBSA-Fort Sam Houston, is headquartered on JBSA-Camp Bullis.

However, its members come from a number of states. Company A is based at Shoreham, N.Y., and Company B, at Lawrence, Kans. Individual Reservists come from as far away as Hawaii and California.

“This is the first time ever that this large of a group [from our battalion], with disparate backgrounds and from all over the country, are meeting here at one time,” said Sgt. 1st Class Robin Warden. “It is good to meet our brothers and sisters.”

The Reserve Soldiers receive training at their home stations and at other locations, principally at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., as well as at JBSA-Camp Bullis, but usually not so many of them train together in the same place at the same time.

First Lt. Luke Siebach, B Company commander, said the Reserve Soldiers focused on warrior tasks, such as weapons training, and cultural awareness and cross-level training during their first week. During the second week, they concentrated on enhancing their interrogation and analysis skills, with emphasis on report writing.

“We want the Soldiers to become familiar with the reporting systems they will be using,”

Two Soldiers of the 338th Military Intelligence Battalion take on respective roles of detainee and interrogator in a practical exercise inside the Intelligence and Security Command Detention Training Facility June 13. Interrogators either strip their uniform of name and insignia or wear a T-shirt when interviewing a detainee. The battalion spent two weeks at JBSA-Camp Bullis practicing interrogation and analysis as well as brushing up on warrior skills.

Siebach added.

A vital element in the second week of training was the Intelligence and Security Command Detention Training Facility, which the 470th MI Brigade maintains and runs on behalf of INSCOM.

The facility makes possible realistic, practical exercises allowing the interrogators to interview “detainees” (played by other Soldiers) in booths while the analysts monitor the proceedings from another room.

Using the interviews and other information gathered, the analysts learn to put together useful intelligence reports.

Warden pointed out that the battalion was the first unit to use the IDTF, in August 2008, prior to deployment overseas for a year shortly afterward. The battalion utilized the facility for both its mission rehearsal exercise and its certification event.

A Soldiers of the 338th Military Intelligence Battalion receives some advice in adjusting her M16 for qualification on the firing range on JBSA-Camp Bullis June 8. The U.S. Army Reserve battalion, most of whose Soldiers reside in Kansas or New York, came together for annual training.

Warden, who has served in uniform for 18 years, is one of only four Soldiers who have belonged to the 338th MI Battalion since it formed in 2007.

“Today the battalion largely consists of junior enlisted Soldiers,” Warden said. “However, the key leadership brings a wealth of experience from other units.”

Spc. Stephen Gregory, a member of the battalion for only three months, said he was already favorably impressed by his new unit. In preparation for his anticipated promotion to sergeant, he said his supervisor put him in a leadership position.

“I like the way this battalion is run,” Gregory said.

However, in the future, the battalion will be bringing its Soldiers together at the IDTF on a regular, more frequent basis.

Consumer Confidence Report Information Specific to Your Community Public Water System

Year this report covers: 2011; Source(s) of Water; Type of water: Groundwater ; Any commonly used name of the body of water: Edwards Aquifer; Location of the body of water: Bexar County
Source Water Assessment Protection
The TCEQ completed an assessment of your source water and results indicate that some of our sources are susceptible to certain contaminants. The sampling requirements for your water system are based on this susceptibility and previous sample data. Any detections of these contaminants may be found in this Consumer Confidence Report. For more information on source water assessments and protection efforts at our system, contact Brian D. Smith, 221-4967.
Information on Detected Contaminants
The data presented in the report is from the most recent testing done in accordance with the regulations.

Radioactive Contaminants
Name of Radioactive Contaminant	Collection Date	Highest Level Detected	Range of Levels Detected	MCLG	MCL	Unit of Measurement	Was This a Violation?	Likely Source of Contamination
Beta/photon emitters	2010	Lowest level detected	0-0	0	50*	pCi/L	N	Decay of natural and man-made deposits
Combined radium	2010	1	1-1	0	5	µg/L	N	Erosion of natural deposits

* EPA considers 50pCi/L to be the level of concern for beta particles

Inorganic Contaminants
Name of Inorganic Contaminant	Collection Date	Highest Level Detected	Range of Levels Detected	MCLG	MCL	Unit of Measurement	Was This a Violation?	Likely Source of Contamination
					(Unless treatment technique or action level is specified)
Antimony	2010	0.639	0.639-0.639	6	6	ppb	N	Discharge from petroleum refineries; fire retardants; ceramics; electronics; solder.
Arsenic	2010	0.45	0.45-0.45	n/a	10	ppb	N	Erosion of natural deposits; Runoff from orchards; Runoff from glass and electronics wastes.
Barium	2010	0.0553	0.0553-0.0533	2	2	ppm	N	Discharge of drilling wastes; Discharge from metal refineries; Erosion of natural deposits.
Beryllium	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	4	4	ppb	N	Discharge from metal refineries and coal burning factories; Discharge from electrical, aerospace, and defense industries.
Cadmium	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	5	5	ppb	N	Corrosion of galvanized pipes; Erosion of natural deposits; Discharge from metal refineries; Runoff from waste batteries and paints.
Chromium	2010	1.38	1.38-1.38	100	100	ppb	N	Discharge from steel and pulp mills; Erosion of natural deposits.
Fluoride	2010	0.2	.02-.02	4	4	ppm	N	Erosion of natural deposits; Water additive which promotes strong teeth; Discharge from fertilizer and aluminum factories.
Mercury	2010	0.826	0.826-0.826	2	2	ppb	N	Erosion of natural deposits; Discharge from refineries and factories; Runoff from landfills; Runoff from cropland.
Nitrate (measured as Nitrogen)	2010	2	1.94-1.94	10	10	ppm	N	Runoff from fertilizer use; Leaching from septic tanks, sewage; Erosion of natural deposits.
Nitrite (measured as Nitrogen)	2010	2	1.94-1.94	10	10	ppm	N	Runoff from fertilizer use; Leaching from septic tanks, sewage; Erosion of natural deposits.
Selenium	2010	0.826	0.826-0.826	50	50	ppb	N	Discharge from petroleum and metal refineries; Erosion of natural deposits; Discharge from mines.
Thallium	2010	0.39	0.39-0.39	0.5	2	ppb	N	Leaching from ore processing sites; Discharge from electronics, glass, and drug factories

Synthetic Organic Contaminants including Pesticides and Herbicides
Name of Organic Contaminant	Collection Date	Highest Level Detected	Range of Levels Detected	MCLG	MCL	Unit of Measurement	Was This a Violation?	Likely Source of Contamination
					(Unless treatment technique or action level is specified)
2,4-D	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	70	70	ppb	N	Runoff from herbicide used on row crops.
2,4,5-TP (Silvex)	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	50	50	ppb	N	Residue of banned herbicide.
Alachlor	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	2	ppb	N	Runoff from herbicide used on row crops.
Atrazine	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	3	3	ppb	N	Runoff from herbicide used on row crops.
Benzo(a)pyrene (PAH)	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	200	ppt	N	Leaching from linings of water storage tanks and distribution lines.
Carbofuran	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	40	40	ppb	N	Leaching of soil fumigant used on rice and alfalfa.
Dalapon	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	200	200	ppb	N	Runoff from herbicide used on rights of way.
Di(2-ethylhexyl)adipate	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	400	400	ppb	N	Discharge from chemical factories.
Dibromochloropropane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	200	ppt	N	Runoff/leaching from soil fumigant used on soybeans, cotton, pineapples, and orchards.
Dinoseb	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	7	7	ppb	N	Runoff from herbicide used on soybeans and vegetables.
Endrin	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	2	2	ppb	N	Residue of banned insecticide.
Ethylene dibromide	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	50	ppt	N	Discharge from petroleum refineries.
Heptachlor	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	400	ppt	N	Residue of banned termiticide.
Heptachlor epoxide	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	200	ppt	N	Breakdown of heptachlor.
Hexachlorobenzene	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	1	ppb	N	Discharge from metal refineries and agricultural chemical factories.
Hexachlorocyclopentadiene	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	50	50	ppb	N	Discharge from chemical factories.
Lindane	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	200	200	ppt	N	Runoff/leaching from insecticide used on cattle, lumber, gardens.
Methoxychlor	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	40	40	ppb	N	Runoff/leaching from insecticide used on fruits, vegetables, alfalfa, livestock.

WATER from P15

Oxamyl (Vydate)	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	200	200	ppb	N	Runoff/leaching from insecticide used on apples, potatoes, and tomatoes.
Pentachlorophenol	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	1	ppb	N	Discharge from wood preserving factories.
Picloram	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	500	500	ppb	N	Herbicide runoff.
Simazine	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	4	4	ppb	N	Herbicide runoff.
Toxaphene	01/20/2009	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	3	ppb	N	Runoff/leaching from insecticide used on cotton and cattle.

Volatile Organic Contaminants
Name of Organic Contaminant	Collection Date	Highest Level Detected	Range of Levels Detected	MCLG	MCL (Unless treatment technique or action level is specified)	Unit of Measurement	Was This a Violation?	Likely Source of Contamination
Benzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from factories; Leaching from gas storage tanks and landfills.
Carbon tetrachloride	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from chemical plants and other industrial activities.
Chlorobenzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	100	100	ppb	N	Discharge from chemical and agricultural chemical factories.
o-Dichlorobenzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	600	600	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
p-Dichlorobenzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	75	75	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
1,2-Dichloroethane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
1,1-Dichloroethylene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	7	7	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
Cis-1,2-Dichloroethylene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	70	70	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
Trans-1,2-Dichloroethylene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	100	100	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
Dichloromethane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from pharmaceutical and chemical factories.
1,2-Dichloropropane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
Ethylbenzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	700	700	ppb	N	Discharge from petroleum refineries.
Styrene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	100	100	ppb	N	Discharge from rubber and plastic factories; Leaching from landfills.
Tetrachloroethylene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Leaching from PVC pipes; Discharge from factories and dry cleaners.
1,2,4-Trichlorobenzene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	70	70	ppb	N	Discharge from textile finishing factories.
1,1,1-Trichloroethane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	200	200	ppb	N	Discharge from metal degreasing sites and other factories.
1,1,2-Trichloroethane	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	3	5	ppb	N	Discharge from industrial chemical factories.
Trichloroethylene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	5	ppb	N	Discharge from metal degreasing sites and other factories.
Toluene	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	1	1	ppm	N	Discharge from petroleum factories.
Vinyl Chloride	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	0	2	ppb	N	Leaching from PVC piping; Discharge from plastics factories.
Xylenes	2010	Levels lower than detected level	0-0	10	10	ppm	N	Discharge from petroleum factories; Discharge from chemical factories.

Disinfectants and Disinfection By-Products
Some people who drink water containing trihalomethanes in excess of the MCL over many years may experience problems with their liver, kidneys, or central nervous systems, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer.
Name of Disinfectants and Disinfection By-Products	Collection Date	Highest Level Detected	Highest Locational Running Annual Average	Range of Levels Detected	MCLG	MCL	Unit of Measurement	Was This a Violation? Likely Source of Contamination
Haloacetic acids	2010	1		0-2	No goal for the total	60	ppb	N By-product of drinking water disinfection.
TTHMs (Total trihalomethanes)	2010	2		1-3.1	No goal for the total	80	ppb	N By-product of drinking water disinfection.
